

Engineering Solutions through stewardship and partnership

Designing and building water systems and reservation-wide infrastructure can be challenging while navigating the requirements of the regulatory and funding agencies involved. You need advocates who listen to your specific concerns and have proven records of commitment to the values and cultures of tribes.

Bartlett & West is that partner from funding, to construction, to ribbon cutting.

History, service, trustworthiness... these are all qualities that are critical when selecting a consultant. You need a firm that is committed and experienced in helping tribes deliver clean water for a variety of purposes and providing infrastructure and transportation solutions that are safe and cost efficient. Bartlett & West is that partner.

As one Three Affiliated Tribes client stated, "We have used Bartlett & West for many years for a variety of projects. We are pleased with their ability and understanding of our needs and culture."
